Hammond High School
5926 Calumet Ave.
Hammond, Ind.
Volume 57

Daze of 1971-72 leads to question:

Hammond High—a place of dirt, dust and noise. Parking problems, cold water, scaffolds, plaster, dirty everything, constant room changes—all discouraged stu-

Construction disrupted and blended with school life. Lack of facilities resulted in fewer activities and electives, in turn causing student, faculty apathy.

Despite such handicaps, 2nd semester clubs, "Alice," vocal department, grid success generated excitement during the year.

To complicate matters, decisions about draft, voting laws, marriage, pregnancy, drinking, drugs confronted teens.

In the midst of all this, HHSers asked, "What's it all about?"

What's it all about?

Though school started on time Sept. 8 (no teacher strike), HHS's 1200 students spent the first week in 15-minute morning classes at Civic Center to give construction men time to ready more classrooms at HHS. ABOVE—Early arrivers enjoy the outdoors before going to bleachers and balcony.

After history class at Civic Center, Janie Breu and David Brooks head back toward HHS.

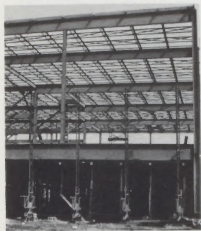

Officially starting March 22, '71, construction workers continued the $4 million HHS building and remodeling project.

Major changes included new roof; heating, air conditioning units installed during the summer.

Workers replaced windows, plumbing, wiring; replastered walls; added intercom, lower ceilings and concrete floors for later carpeting.

Construction of the new gym, begun in March '71, continued at the building's north end (below).

Workers started construction of a swimming pool and fine arts wing in the old boys gym area.

Boys pool area was renovated for music and business rooms.

Workmen began excavating girls PE area and boiler room for shop classes, faculty lounge and storage rooms.

South wing was extended for the new main office and cafeteria.

Other changes underway included enlarging the library, stage; building lecture, AV, publications rooms in the balcony.

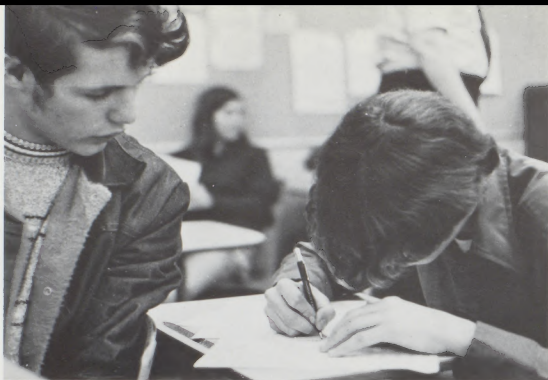

Construction completion date was set for fall 1972.

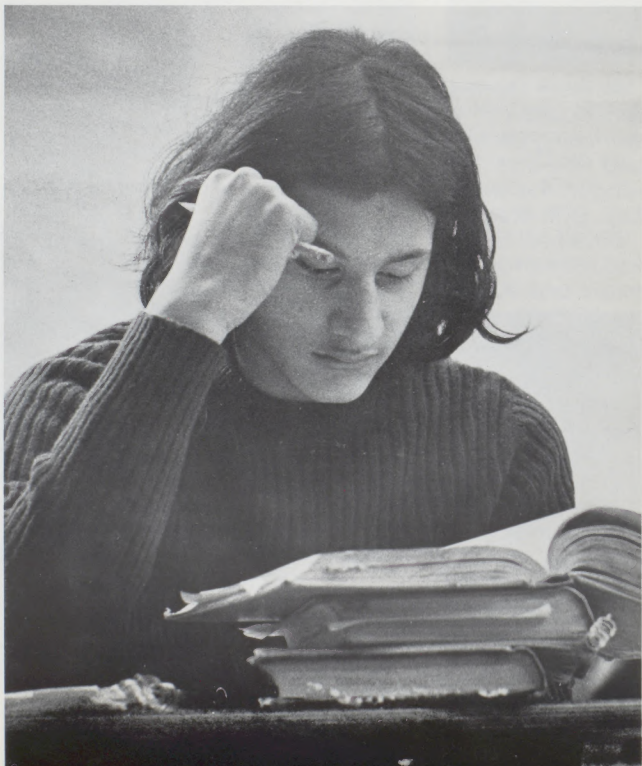

Driven from the auditorium by lack of heat and light, study hall convenes temporarily in the top floor hall.

Closed all year because of construction, the library serves as a repository for everything from unused furniture to an architect's model of the finished project.

Daily announcements help tell the year's story:
"Club and activity period will be held today at 8:45 a.m. Make sure you remember the time schedule today, especially when the lunch periods end. No excuses for not knowing."

"The theater is in need of a circular saw to replace the one stolen out of the tool cabinet over the summer."

"Herald staff will have a bake sale today during lunch hours."

"A reward is offered for the return of a bullwhip lost Feb. 22."

"Support CREAD and your environment. Come to the school cleanup tomorrow."

"Miss Grose's PE classes will meet in the gym

"To our great Wildcat basketball team: due to the fact that we do not have the facilities to give your great team a pep session, we just wanted you to know that we're really backing you 100%."

Morality--rules and principles of conduct set by society.

Youth disregarded many morals established by their parents because of a need to find their own way of life.

"We're all trying to get it together for ourselves instead of someone's doing it for us," said a junior boy.

One way some students got it together was through exploration of such spiritual interests as the Jesus movement and Far Eastern practices.

Despite these new religious leanings, childhood-instilled racial, social and ethnic prejudices still swayed some.

Drug usage increased in an atmosphere of greater acceptance and tolerance.

In the wake of controversy over its legalization, some students smoked grass (marijuana). Others dropped acid (LSD) and other hallucinogens. A few tried the needle.

Indulgence in pre-marital sex also seemed more common, or at least more open. Consequently, pregnancy and its decisions--whether to get married, have an abortion, keep the baby or put it up for adoption--confronted teenage girls.

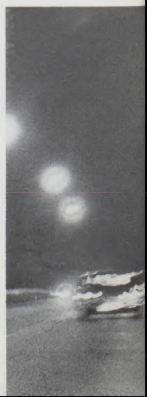

Another danger for both boys and girls was venereal disease, which reached epidemic proportions nationally.

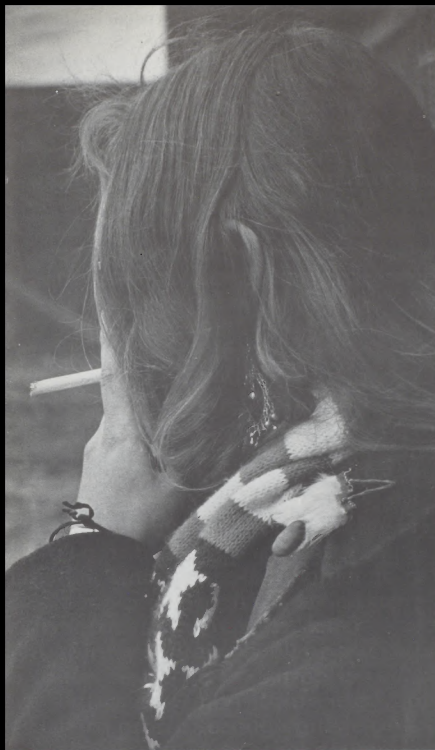

Use of alcohol was another area for moral decisions, as it has been in past years.

Responsibilities

These problems, as well as everyday relations with adults, family and friends, stood in the path of youth's search for himself and the guidelines for his life.

To teenagers, the car served as status symbol and passport from home humdrum. It also compounded the chances for trouble and added to the air pollution problem.

Reflecting the increasing popularity of handicrafts as pastimes, Wendy Thon hooks a rug.

Despite high schoolers' attempts at independence, many still turned to home and family for emotional as well as financial support.

Borrowing the car, getting permission, asking for advice, reuniting with relatives for holidays—all formed integral parts of the student's family life.

Alternately a refuge or prison, depending on one's mood and relationship with his family, home was a place to do homework and housework; use the phone; gather with friends; argue with parents, brothers and sisters; listen to music; catch up on sleep; pursue hobbies; daydream and grow up.

Meeting with other students at a friend's house for their weekly Thursday morning prayer breakfast, seniors Cathy Pratt, Bruce Cegur and Betty Miller exchange ideas about the Bible's relevance to now.

School

School--a 6-letter, 7-period word, encompassed activities, academics, organizations and athletics.

To HHSers in 1971-72, school took on additional connotations thanks to construction.

It became a place that required endurance and produced apathy.

It meant moving from week to week and seeing daily changes.

It meant delaying or not having some events.

However, it continued to mean doing homework, sweating tests, memorizing play parts, winning games--learning.

Proper introductions must include a "How 'du You Do and Shake Hands," explain the dancing twins Tweedledum (Roseanne Frechette) and Tweedledee (Cindy Story).

"I give myself very good advice, but I very seldom follow it," sings Alice (Cathy Pratt) to her friend, Cheshire cat (Mark Norden).

Stupidity and leg painting antics of fellow gardeners (Don Seagraves, kneeling; and Dennis Waugh, right) appall gardener Bob Bainer.

New gym conditions cause actors to present 'Alice' at Edison, TFN

Directed by Mr. Marty Stiglitz, actors presented "Alice in Wonderland" Jan. 6, 7 at Edison School.

Because of poor acoustics, bad lighting and painting of the new gym ceiling, thespians were unable to perform the play in the new gym.

Due to limited seating at Edison, TF North offered its stage for another performance Jan. 15.

Students made their own costumes using papier mache for the frog's, turtle's and gryphon's heads; a turtle shell; and mad hatter's hat.

Cathy Pratt portrayed Alice; Mark Norden, Cheshire cat; Bruce Cegur, mad hatter, Joni Sullivan, the duchess, and Diana Shoup, the cook.

Jeff Feathergill, Scott Ferree and Bill Costylo acted as March hare, caterpillar and frog footman.

Other actors were Mitch Thomas as gryphon; Cabe Davies, executioner; Don Seagraves, Bob Bainer and Dennis Waugh, the gardeners.

Cast consisted of Mike Taylor, white rabbit; Malcolm Springs, turtle; Micheline Harris, Mike Cegur, queen and king of hearts; Roseanne Frechette and Cindy Story, Tweedledum and Tweedledee; Kevin Pless, knave; Debbie Quint, dormouse.

Court ladies included Melinda Rush, Karen Sheehy, Renee Sheehy, Mary Hildebrandt, Hallie Kutchin and Mitzi Teten. Following acted as the courtiers: Don Kitchell, Eric Dongu and Brian Pleitner.

Cast consisted of Jackie Patrick, Cindy Baxter, Julie Borowski, Diane Bruhn, Laurie Sherman, Jane Duncan, Carol Tancredi, Jan Stack, Kim Whitaker and Margie Whitelaw, who appeared as the card soldiers.

Greg Lenz, Jim Costylo, Cabe Davies, Kip Alishio, Dan Costylo and Mike Mrache acted as prop men.

Mr. Stiglitz appointed juniors Jeff Feathergill assistant director and Scott Ferree stage manager.

Throughout the performance, antics of the inhabitants of Wonderland — tea drinking mad hatter (Bruce Cegur), pepper crazy cook (Diana Shoup), moralizing duchess (Joni Sullivan), henpecked king of hearts (Mike Cegur), and head collecting queen of hearts (Micheline Harris) — amaze but stand in the way of Alice in her search for the way to return home.

Converted faculty men's washroom serves as sewing room for stage crewers Debbie Harris, Hallie Kutchin, tailoring "Alice" outfits.

Drama Club continues; stage crew builds sets

While 2nd semester saw the reinstating of Drama Club, it looked upon the disbanding of stage crew.

Because construction hampered work in the theater as school began, director Mr. Marty Stiglitz converted crew into a stage theory class. Crew then started designing costumes and building sets in October for "Alice in Wonderland."

Stage crew disbanded in January due to the theater's close and Mr. Stiglitz's recovery from injuries received in an auto accident.

Drama Club opened activities Feb. 29. In its first meeting since last spring, new members were required to stage impromptu skits.

Members made plans to see the musical "1776" in Chicago in May.

Construction hampers Association activities

Building renovation affected both homecoming and Association Week, the Association's 2 major events.

Construction-caused lack of facilities forced the homecoming game and dance to Morton Sept. 21.

Homecoming week activities included secret Wildcat day Sept. 21, popcorn day Sept. 22, mourning day Sept. 23 and spirit day Sept. 24.

Rain soaked the parade Sept. 25. In float judging seniors' "Slide into Victory" captured first place, freshmen 2nd, and sophomores 3rd. Junior float, ruined on its way to the parade, didn't enter judging.

"Hammond High Band Wagon," earned $10 as best decorated car.

Chosen from senior football players in a student election, fullback Dennis McFarland captured the first Mr. Touchdown trophy.

Highlighting halftime, president

Students danced to the music of the Clique Shays after the game.

Association Week, April 26-30, 1971, began with Tom Sawyer day when groups painted the construction site fence by the new gym. Old-fashioned day called for students to wear non-modern attire.

Teacher-student turnabout day took place April 28. Inter-class tug of war climaxed freak day April 29. Sophomores beat seniors in the contest at Harrison Park.

Dressup day April 30 featured an auditorium session, slave sale, student-faculty basketball game and post-game soc hop with ORE.

Cold wind and rain played havoc with hairdos of the homecoming court—senior Sue junior Cindy Watson and freshman Diana Davis—who were presented at halftime.

Scherwood Club sites 1971 prom

After 4 revisions, class of '72 chose "Just My Imagination" as the theme of the junior-senior prom at Scherwood Club May 14, 1971.

Bob Wilson's orchestra entertained the 90 couples from 9 p.m.-12 m. Soul Creators provided post-promsters with music from 1-3 a.m.

Decorating committee, headed by Patti Hall, carried out the color scheme with pastels. Paper balls and crepe paper hung from the ceiling. A fountain and daisy centerpieces completed the decorations.

Prom-goers received favors consisting of gold charms with a '71 tie tac attached to a purple stone reading "HHS junior-senior prom."

Graduation ceremonies feature Senator Bayh

Auditorium session, banquet, baccalaureate and graduation finalized the year for 278 class of '71ers.

Events began with valedictorian Debbie Terry and salutatorian Nancy Conway speaking for honors day May 19. This program recognized scholarship, citizenship award, and athletic award winners. Seniors also received departmental awards.

"For All We Know" themed the senior-faculty dinner May 24 at Condes Restaurant. Participants included master of ceremonies John House and speaker Barb Barenie.

Graduates attended baccalaureate June 6 at Civic Center. The Rev. Theodore Menz gave the invocation and the benediction. The Rev. Carver Tinsley offered the sermon.

Diplomas, distributed by school board member Ralph Potesta, went to graduates June 9 at Civic Center. Indiana Senator Birch Bayh and Debbie Terry keynoted the evening's speakers. The Rev. John Parrish gave the invocation and the Rev. Ralph Steele gave the benediction.

Grads turn attention to the program as they await their processional from the basement to the Civic Center main floor.

Association alters clubs systems, stages dances

Headquartered in temporary meeting places, Association sponsored dances and food drive, revised club schedule and proposed a way of revising the discipline system.

Because of construction, clubs did not meet first semester. Starting Feb. 29, clubs began on a revised schedule which involved cutting 8 minutes from each period to allow a 56-minute club period each week.

Proposed discipline system plan stated that student court handle tardiness. Rather than get detentions and suspensions for tardies, students would do cleanup work.

Food drive Nov. 18-24 supplied 10 needy Hammond families with a Thanksgiving dinner. Money collected from students and faculty bought a turkey for each family.

Association soc hops featured Clique Shays Sept. 25, Abraxus Feb. 19 and Soulful Sensations March 24. 1972-73 officers were announced at the folk fest March 17.

478 summer schoolers journey to

End of the school year found students in classes or elsewhere.

Because of continued installing of air-conditioning units and cementing of floors at HHS, 478 Wildcats attended summer classes at Tech and Gavit June 16-Aug. 11.

With 5 cars, 105 driver ed students took to the roads learning driving safety and total car care.

Fourteen HHS teachers, along with others, taught 21 courses ranging from advanced chemistry to automobile service. HHS dean, Mr. Dick Barr, served at Tech.

For those not going to summer school, vacation could mean working, playing basketball, traveling, sleeping late, swimming, attending parties, or going on dates.

Soccer occupies a summer day for juniors Walter Jakubas, Bill Stygar, Gary Drutis, Bill Bonham and Stan Dzieciolowski.

Issue of attendance brings Ramona Young to dean Mr. Richard Barr's office for a conference during summer school at Tech.

26 students specialize at summer workshops

Twenty-six HHSers attended summer workshops or institutes.

Indiana State U. hosted seniors Kip Alishio, Cabe Davies, and Peter Jarrett for Boys State June 12-19. In mock elections, Peter won the office of the lieutenant-governor.

Girls State participants included seniors Kathy Chamberlain, Debbie Hendon and Barb DeBoe. They attended Indiana U. June 13-20.

Sponsored by the Hammond Times, junior Doreen Smith attended a 3-week Ball State urban journalism program June 29-July 15.

Herald staffers Joni Sullivan and Diana Shoup joined Doreen at BSU July 4-15. Diana won the outstanding feature writer award.

BSU hosted Dunes staffers Colleen Conley, Cindy Story and Sue Weaver Aug. 1-12. Cindy got most improved photographer award.

Leadership institute at IU July 18-24 provided Association officers new student government concepts.

Learning chants, cheers and techniques, varsity cheerleaders attended Vincennes U. July 18-23. Girls won 5 ribbons and a spirit stick.

Debators Betty Maksymczak, Sheila Husted and Pam Roper attended Manchester debate institute July 11-24 to study the topic, "Should the jury system in the US be significantly changed?"

Portfolios of work and teacher recommendations allowed Bruce Cegur and Jan Grekoff to attend BSU art institute July 26-30.

For 8 weeks, junior Michelle Thomas acted in Calumet City's little theater group at TF North, learning acting, makeup, voice and dance.

Academics

Students earned graduation credits by following one of 3 major study courses: college prep, general or business.

Departments added 5 courses: applied math, music appreciation, music theory, modern literature and introduction to research, to the curriculum.

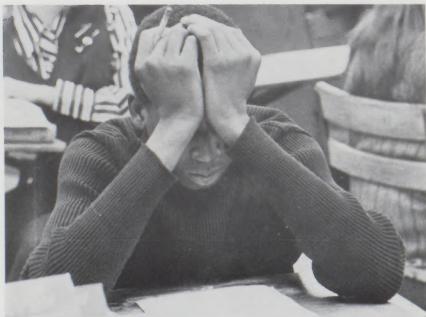

IR allowed students to choose a project to research or work on for a semester. Students asked teachers to sponsor them.

Lack of facilities caused the cancellation of foods and girls swimming classes. Note-hand, speech and contemporary history were also dropped.

Ecology, Camera, Knitting and Crocheting, and matmaid clubs were founded when activity periods began Feb. 29.

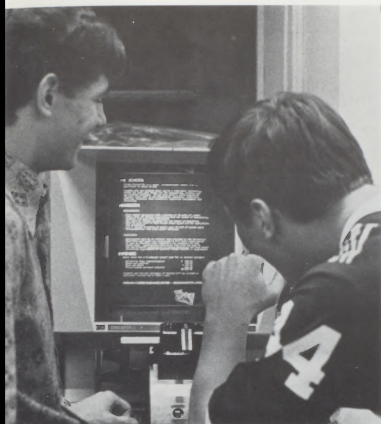

Dance troupe, Junior Classical League, Radio, Babysitters, Future Secretaries, Hockey and Skindiving clubs were disbanded because of lack of sponsors and interest.

New offices house student services

New student services center on the lower floor headquartered the nurse, librarian and counselors.

New health center consisted of a waiting area, resting area, office, washroom and storage room. However, school city budget cuts resulted in nurse Mrs. Shirley Huls' being assigned to Kenwood School for 2 half days a week.

While the library was being enlarged and remodeled all year, librarian Mr. Jerry Janco worked in a small guidance center office.

This space shortage limited the accessible library collection to reference books, a few paperbacks, current magazines and newspapers.

After setting up shop around the old main office during the first few weeks of school, the 4 counselors moved to their new offices in the lower southeast corner.

Facilities included a new microfilm machine with a store of college and job information called Indiana Career Guidance Center.

Inspired by an Indo-China poverty scene, junior Bev Madden writes an in-class theme entitled "Struggle for Life."

English changes hit seniors, sophs

"Do UFOs exist?" Jim Vellner expounds on that question in an English 3 speech.

Curriculum changes affected seniors and sophomores in English.

Department offered modern literature for the first time. It served as an alternative to English lit for non-college-prep seniors.

On the other hand, sophomores could no longer take journalism or speech as alternatives to English 4. Lack of enrollment cut speech out all year, and journalism was offered 2nd semester only.

Moved from the upper auditorium foyer because of construction, the English office switched to rm. 110. Removal of the roof in summer resulted in the loss of some texts.

After subbing in winter, Miss Kathy Bajusz was hired in March to replace the late Mr. TD Reed.

After writing themes based on 3 magazine pictures, Comp 5 students Lavearn Reed, Mike Fano, Claudia Dutro, Steve Beville and George Kovach evaluate one another's papers.

Staff changes organization of book

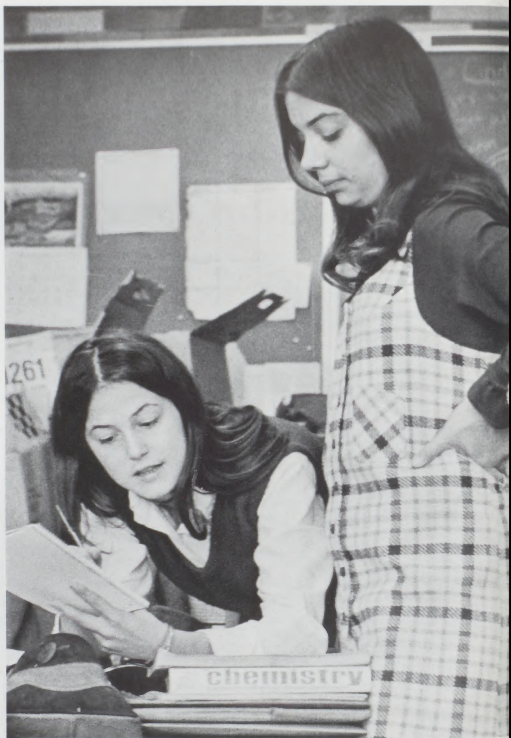

Having earned its 4th straight All American from National Scholastic Press Assn., '72 Dunes staff tried to capture the human as well as the factual side of the year.

Editor Colleen Conley, associate editor Sue Weaver, and photography editor Cindy Story attended the Ball State journalism workshop Aug. 1-12. Cindy received the most improved photographer award.

Major change in the '72 Dunes was the organization of the book. Instead of having 7 different sections, the Dunes had 4. The staff used more special typographical effects and student photography.

Newspaper alters columns, paper

Besides regular coverage of the 1971-72 year, Herald staff featured the "Re:Views" column, "Afro-American profiles, past & present" column, the planned parenthood series, and construction reports.

Herald received its 6th and 7th consecutive All American ratings from National Scholastic Press Assn. in spring and fall judgments.

Sponsored by the Hammond Times, Doreen Smith attended a 3-week urban journalism workshop at Ball State U. June 29-July 15. Editor Joni Sullivan and feature editor Diana Shoup joined Doreen at BSU July 4-15. Diana earned the outstanding feature writer staff award.

To save money, the staff changed from DeLaney Printer to LithoType in Lansing. This move, plus the use of newsprint paper instead of the bookstock used last year, saved the department about $70 an issue.

Rotary oratorical contest netted junior Kurt Huebner a first place trophy. Junior Pam Roper received a 3rd place ribbon in the American Legion oratorical contest.

Huebner and Roper won certificates for placing in top 10 at Purdue's student congress Dec. 10-11.

At the CFL championship Jan. 8 Debbie Smulski placed first in poetry reading. Sheila Husted and Roper won 2nd in debate; Huebner and junior Betty Maksymczak, 3rd. Husted placed first as debate speaker.

Juniors Huebner, Roper, David Seddelmeyer, Jeff Feathergill, Drew Brahms, Patti VanNatta, and sophomore Charles Herbst entered regional competition. VanNatta went on to compete at the state meet.

Scribes cope with financial trouble

Publications banquet, Quill & Scroll writing contest, and finances occupied Quill & Scrollers.

Sponsor Miss Judy Richter named new members in February and May at the department honors banquet.

Because of increasing costs and decreasing revenues, journalists had to have other fund-raising projects. Fund-raisers included selling Gwen Frostic stationery; collecting glass at 1¢ a pound for recycling; having weekly bake sales at school and at local stores and banks throughout the year; having spring car washes; and sponsoring the Dunes autograph party in June.

Seven journalists submitted stories to the Quill & Scroll writing contest. Doreen Smith and Cathy Pratt entered their stories in the news story division. Diana Shoup and Lisa Laczi vied in feature story competition. Cindy Gill and Christina Leonakis submitted their sports stories, and Joni Sullivan entered editorial competition.

French extends to 5th year; Latin drops out

Foreign comprehension films, lab tapes and conversational texts aided language students with studies.

Through lab tapes and comprehension films, French students developed simultaneous listening, speaking, reading and writing skills.

Using new conversational texts, Russian classes aimed to learn current usage of the language. Lack of enrollment forced first, 2nd and 3rd year classes to combine.

German linguists deciphered radio plays, performed skits and presented speeches about noted Germans.

For the first time, the department offered a 5th year of French. It met with the 4th year class.

However, because of declining enrollment and the retirement of Miss Margaret Work, the department discontinued Latin classes.

Eight juniors competed in the Indiana U. foreign language honors program to study abroad. They took a listening comprehension test at IU Northwest Dec. 4. Competitors included Pam Galloway, Bill Gostylo, Marilyn Leimbach, Pam Roper and Choi Wong, German; Gloria Lozano and Betsy Taliaferro, French; and Sharon Scott, Spanish.

Language clubs boost treasury, increase enrollment, enjoy music

Listening to speakers, serving refreshments, and studying music, composers busied language clubbers.

Spanish Club's enrollment increased from 15 to 25 members. For the first year freshmen were allowed in the club and qualified for office of secretary or treasurer.

Club planned to hear Mrs. Ibis Vasquez speak about Cuban life and customs. Members also planned a trip to the Chicago Art Institute.

French clubbers served refreshments in a Parisian atmosphere during intermission at the Kiwanis travelogue at Gavit March 2. Proceeds went toward the Indiana U. foreign language honors program.

Renovation forces social studiests to Civic Center, causes book loss

Classroom renovation during the first 2½ months of school caused the social studies department to move all classes to Civic Center.

Also, the department lost about 100 textbooks due to construction damage and room switches.

Social studies classes returned to HHS Nov. 22 when the Shrine Circus arrived at Civic Center.

Mr. Mark Panton's US History 1 classes traveled to Chicago Jan. 18 to tour the wax museum in Old Town, the Chicago Historical Society and the Elks' War Memorial.

His government classes visited the Hammond city hall and talked to Mayor Joseph E. Klen Jan. 20.

Department offered accelerated world history classes 2nd semester.

Because of construction, social studies classes such as US history met at Civic Center for the first 10 weeks.

In spite of rain, heat and a shortened first-week schedule at Civic Center, sophomore world history students get texts from Mr. John Wonsowitz, who retrieved the books from the under-construction HHS building.

Tour of City Hall gives Sheila Husted, Debbie Harris and Mary Margaret Toth a chance to meet Mayor Joseph E. Klen Jan. 20.

Booster, Matmaid clubs back teams

Adult Boosters, Top Kat and matmaids boosted Cat athletic teams.

Adult Booster Club sponsored a basketball game between a team of Chicago Bears football players and a team of the HHS faculty and alumni Jan. 30 at Civic Center.

Preceding this basketball game, HHS and Noll stars of 1955-56 played in a basketball game. Long-time rivalry beginning in the 1956 Hammond sectionals inspired the HHS-BNI rematch. Science teacher Mr. Bob King coached the Wildcats and Mr. Eddie Hudson the Warriors.

Top Kat closed its membership to seniors because money earned will pay for next year's activities. Members raised about $200 by selling Rex All-Purpose Cleaner.

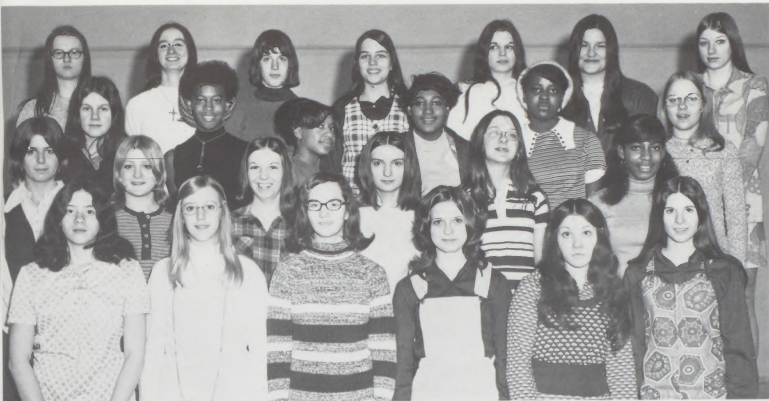

Matmaids, incorporated this year, helped run the wrestling matches.

Sponsoring bake sales, car washes and popping popcorn helped finance new uniforms for the wrestling team and for the matmaids.

Girls planned a soc hop for May.

Changes affect workers in office, halls, kitchen

Construction caused changes in facilities and routines for cafeteria, office and custodial staffs.

With the work force cut to 2 women (the others shifting to other schools), food service began on a limited basis in the auditorium.

Next it was headquartered in the new gym concession stand. There the women served soup, hot dogs and chili heated on hot plates. Mrs. Marian Dobryzinski made the more than 200 sandwiches at home, then took them to HHS each day.

Beginning the year with all 5 jammed into the main office, clerks gradually took up permanent residence: Mrs. Irene Kucer in the new bookstore, Mrs. June Toren in the new guidance office in October; Mrs. Devon Vance, Mrs. Joan Pawenski and Mrs. Maxine Hensley in the new main office in early March.

Augmented by laborers, custodians bore the brunt of transferring furniture, equipment and supplies.

Remodeling requires added custodial staff such as these cleaning ladies and laborers.

Clerical staff — Mrs. June Toren, guidance; Mrs. Joan Pawenski, head clerk; Mrs. Maxine Hensley; Mrs. Devon Vance, principal's secretary; Mrs. Irene Kucer, treasurer.

Stocked with sporks and sandwiches, cooks Mrs. Marian Dobryzinski and Mrs. Margaret Kokinda await the onslaught of the 4th period lunch bunch in the concession stand of the new gym.

Freshmen start year sponsorless

Besides braving construction, freshmen faced their first year at HHS without a class sponsor.

In spite of that handicap, new Wildcats rallied to build a homecoming float, "Smash 'Em," that placed 2nd in the parade judging.

Orientation Sept. 7 marked the first day together for the 324 class of '75 members. On that day they met their counselors, received their schedules and posed for their identification photographs.

Lack of time cancelled the traditional parent orientation day.

Sailing through their 2nd year, sophomores constructed a float, ordered class rings and planned.

Their float, "Grease the Oilers," won 3rd in the homecoming parade.

After taking bids and reviewing the selections of 3 ring companies, class officers and sponsors—Mrs. Margaret Mertens, Mrs. Emanda Jones—chose Herff-Jones for jewelry. The company displayed its wares the first week of January and took orders Jan. 11. Sophs expected ring delivery in spring.

Planned activities included a Dunes trip and fund-raising event.

Juniors earn funds for May prom

Earning money for the junior-senior prom, 364 juniors sold baked goods, light bulbs, slaves; and raised class dues from 50¢ to 75¢.

For the first time since 1968, juniors chose a site other than Sherwood Club for prom and post-prom. Class decided on Great Oaks Country Club for the May 12 event.

Wind wrecked juniors' homecoming float, "Stop pollution, clean up Oilers," on the way to the parade. Therefore, princess Cindy Watson rode on the senior float.

Washing cars July 31 busied the class of '73 in summer. They had a bake sale at Burger's in November and sold light bulbs all year.

Juniors and their parents met with counselor Mr. Fred Monberg for college information Oct. 18. Class members undertook the PSAT in November and the SAT April 15.

Junior class officials—Mr. Jay Wood, sponsor; Marta Shuya, secretary; Tracy Plowman, treasurer; Martha Mamula, vice president; David Brooks, president.

Community

Like HHS, the community experienced growth and change.

Construction projects like the new fire station, court house, HHS, Scott and Central Middle schools helped improve the city's appearance and provided jobs.

In spite of economic unrest, local businessmen strove to provide their patrons with the best service.

Wildcats spent their money on clothes, records, movies, food, cosmetics, car expenses and supplies for school.

After school and Saturday jobs helped to pay for purchases.

Community's events influence youth

Through the mass media as well as word of mouth, youth kept up with news of the city and world.

Locally, citizens saw construction of the main fire station on Calumet and courthouse on Russell.

Shore Line bus company discontinued regular service, forcing commuters either to find another ride or to take the Shore Line buses chartered by the school city.

Nevertheless, HHSers found ways to get to community activities. They joined scouts, Masonic and church organizations. Some did volunteer work in hospitals or on Hotline, a phone listening service.

Some girls joined Luesella, sponsored by Hammond Women's Club. Luesella's annual winter turnabout attracted more than 50 couples.

Eighteen-year-olds got their first chance to vote in the local elections in November. Mayor Joseph Klen defeated GOP candidate Donald Taylor. The Rev. John Parrish won his bid to become the first black on the city council.

Reflecting the renewed youthful interest in religion, a group of students took turns hosting the weekly Thursday prayer breakfast.

Several black students formed the Black Student Movement after racial disturbances and fights at HHS in early December. Although BSM had meetings with principal Dr. F. K. Feuerbach and was advised by Mr. Robert Miller, advisory-specialist to the superintendent, it did not seek HHS club status.

After collecting food and clothing for needy families at Christmas, BSM met with some faculty and Association members to discuss more black teachers, black counselors, black culture in the curriculum and election procedures.

On a wider scope, blacks earned headlines in March when leaders from all over the country met in Gary for a black political caucus.

State legislature convened in February for a session marked more by what it didn't do than what it did do. Of major interest to high schoolers, it rejected tax reform and the 18-year-old drinking age.

More helpful was US Congress, which passed a law allowing Lake County to stay with Chicago during the daylight savings time period.

Lab technician from St. Margaret Hospital draws blood from Lynette Lindsey for the Jaycee-sponsored sickle cell anemia test administered to black students March 1.

Playing host, principal Dr. F. K. Feuerbach greets graduation speaker Sen. Birch Bayh (D., Ind.). Bayh aided passage of the 18-year-old voting amendment.

Rushing from a Columbia Avenue storm sewage outlet to the Little Calumet, polluted water provides a target for ecologists.

Recruiting 18-year-old voters, Mrs. Bessie Smith and Mrs. Curtis Cleveland register senior Eileen Tapper.

Third hour phone call to Bodie Studio furthers Herald news editor Virginia VanVynckt's plans for pictures.

"It fits, but is it okay?" Dunes staffers Tracy Plowman and Rhuberdia Smith collaborate on the cutline for an art action shot taken by Harry Dudzik of Bodie's.

Designing the Dunes track spread for DeLaney printing, Sandy Bieber wields pica ruler.

Delivery of Bodie photographs develops into a sorting session for publications adviser Miss Judy Richter and Dunes copy editor senior Diane Walker during 6th hour in room 9.

Bodie shoots pictures; DeLaney prints Dunes

Bodie at 149 State St. supplied film and pictures for the '72 yearbook and Herald, while DeLaney at 113 Sibley Blvd. printed the book.

Beginning with spring sports at the end of last year and continuing with senior pictures during the summer, Bodie photographers finished the schedule with groups at HHS.

New computerized printing system assisted DeLaney in printing the yearbook index cards, Dunes order blanks, galley proofs and the final 172 pages of the Dunes.

Current events, music movies, athletics affect lives of high schoolers

"Violence has become a way of life in most of Northern Ireland...."

--Colin Leinster,
"Life," April 7,
1972

Economics, Red China, the war and Presidential politics dominated news throughout the year.

In an effort to stem the inflation spiral, President Richard Nixon ordered a wage-price freeze in August. Three months later the freeze thawed into Phase II with government board scrutiny of attempts to raise wages and prices.

Vietnam war wound down with troop withdrawals. Nonetheless, GI heroin addictions, renewed bombing and publication of the Pentagon papers continued to keep the war in a spotlight of controversy.

After the United Nations finally admitted Red China and expelled Nationalist China, President Nixon breached a years-old separation by going to Peking to talk with Chinese leaders in February.

Although Nixon had the Republican ring nearly to himself, the Democratic party had hordes of would-be Presidential candidates: Shirley Chisholm, Vance Hartke, Hubert Humphrey, Henry Jackson, John Lindsay, George McGovern, Edmund Muskie and George Wallace with Ted Kennedy always in the background, unannounced but draftable. A grueling series of state primaries resulted in casualties and fatalities during the spring.

However, Republicans had to cope with the embarrassment of a memo linking them with IT&T favors.

Other events making national news included the west coast dock strike, creation of Amtrak for the railroads, uprising at Attica prison, Angela Davis trial, ecology, school busing, 18-year-old vote, women's lib and plane hijackings.

On the international scene, the world watched continued strife between Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland. India intervened in East Pakistan to create the new nation of Bangla Desh.

"Nixon is plainly older. Aging in Presidents comes suddenly, both in the man and the beholder."

--Hugh Sidey,
"Life," April 7,
1972
